A RELIGIOUS sect has been recently organized in Ontario, Canada, upon a revival of the old Oriental doctrine or dogma that women have no souls. It had with the Jews and other peoples no basis in Indian Commissioner Atkins's Angual nature or logic, and was only defensible upon the asserted lordship of man and the subordination of women. With the new sect it rests on the fact that women are nowhere in the Bible, referred to as angels. This is of the very essence of the absurdity of literalism, and proves that notwithstanding our boasted nineteenth century civilization the tendency to fauntcism has not died out, and there is still a large measure of seed for cranks to cultivate.

A NOTABLE article in the January Lip pincott will consist of a series of criticisms by George Eliot upon Dickens, Tennyson, Kingsley, Browning, and others of her noted contemporaries, resuscitated from the pages of the Westminster Review.

As these criticisms have not been included in any edition of her miscellaneous works and will be looked for with great interest. NUMBER ONE of the Household Library, published by D. Lothrop & Co. of Boston entitled The Pettibone Name, and is from the pen of Margaret Sidney, the author of So as by Fire. It is a New England story, simple of plot and construction, that gives some faithful and charming views of the life of an unconventional people. Its intent and purpose is good, and it leaves an impression of "sweetness and light." THE fourth series of the Johns Hopkins was burned to a crisp. fury are of unusual interest. Capt. Erics-son furnishes the serious war paper of the number, which is both important as a con-tribution to history and interesting to the general reader, since it describes the prin-ciples of construction of the original Mon-itor, and the performances of "The Moni-tors" as a class, all from the point of yiew of the inventor. The pictures illustrate fully the battle incidents, as well as the mechanical side of the paper. "The Loss of the Monitor" is briefly and most graphically described by a survivor, Francis B. Butts.

as it reveals itself in the round of homely, every-day life, and the keen sarcasm and adroit humor with which she lay bare its foibles, its weaknesses and its grotesque eut-croppings have rarely, if ever, been equaled. So skillfully, so slyly does she draw out the ridiculous elements in her characters that the reader's smile grows broader and broader, until it becomes a hearty laugh. And yet there is nothing overstrained in her humorous hits. She is at times also intensely pathetic, so that one does not tire of her writing. Her wonderful pathos and humor, so perfectly blended, have made her eminently successful as a writer of bright, humorous stories. But the strong feature of all Miss Holley's humor, is its moral tone.
